I am willing to let now that some of the largest, stiffeet and longest games ever played anywhere took place at lake ports and on lake vessels between 1850 and 1869. Several of you must remember it. It was not so long ago, it was quite natural that such things should be, too. There were very few stemistants and every one was musking money, even the scance. The ubiquitous American has roome to the front again. According to the ilinstrated Mail of London Corporal Toble, an American boy, was the first soldier to reach the aumunt of Spidon Kop. Lieut. Preaton Brown, of the Second Infaniry, now stationed at Fort Thomas, says that there was a young private of the name of High Toble in the Fifth artillery while he was a member of that organization, and he has reasons to believe that the young American who distinguished himself at Spidon Kop is the identical person. Lieut. Brown remembers Toble as a bright ladand a good sollier. The following extract from a letter written from the seat of war to the Mail was accompanied by a photograph of the hero. "The first position taken by our troops during the assault upon Spidon Kop was won by the F aquadron of South African light horse, and the first man to gain the amunot of the hill was Corporal Toble, an American. When he reached the erest some distance in front of his comralca he found the enemy had already fied, and, turning, shouted to the men elimbing the ascent 'Come on, there is no one here, Almost immediately the advance swept the hrow of the hill, which was then occupied by them until subsequently relieved hy the men of the queen's."

They have been reproduced in wool, in allk and in a misture of allk and wool, the newest departure being the Stuarst tartan, with a sort af overgravib of shaggy hairs. Dull grays, krown tones and red mingle in the faircy platis, and a dash of yellow with white has n certain style. These used great ears in cutting, und for seasis the jointings must be without reproach. In velvet these platis are being employed for vesta with plain cloths.—Cleveland Plain Dealer. It was after the fourth round o Scotch and soon and the little group in the cafe scemed to be feeling what they had taken all but one little man In the cafa accraci to be feeling what they had taken all but on little man with a decided English accent. Excusing himself for a moment he walked across the room and, pulling a small tial from his a sisteost pocket, took a awallow of n yallonish fiald. But the act had been noticed by his more bolsterous companions and they demanded to know what his game was, asya the Philadelphia Record. "No, it's not poison," insphingly replied the Englishman as he displayed the time. "I'm not ready to go just yel. It is ollra oil and when I get mised up with a crowd like this I always have recourse to it. After I have had about four or fits disha coming rather rapidly on top of each other I take a awallow of oil. It seems to have a most remarkable effect agont the liquor, the same effect that oil has when ponred upon troubled naters. When I adopt this treatment I am aura never to become befuddled, and I can truthfully say that I have never been dennk in my life, atthough I have often taken more than enough to make me so."

A man receiving "A" followed by any other better than "K" (Its twin) would at once know something was wrong, and signal "Ite-port."

Among several incidents of "Tho loyhood of Tho Conqueror," related by Adole E. Orpen, is this account of a midnight flight:

One of these shooting-matches acarly cost him hie lile. He was about 20 years old when, in early summer of the year 1047, he went with a large train of friends and attendants to shoot at Valagoes. In those days there were great forests covering the hills and valleys around Valognes, and na these forests were full of game the young duke and his friends expected to enjoy themselves. They formed so large a party that they had to acparate and todge where they cauld in the town. This left the duke with only a few servants in the castle. In this middle of that night he was auddenty swakened by a fund knocking, and the shouting of some one mounting tha sialrs to his chamber. He listened, and recognized tha volen of Gallet, a strolling buffoon, whom ha knew very well, and to where he had frequently given little irifics. "Fly! fly!" shouted the tustion."

The Hepublican convention is over and ne every one expected Mr. McKinley was renominated by acclaumiton without a dissending voice, which is a great bound to him. The mexpected occurred in the nomination of Gov. Boosevelt of New York, by neclannilon also, for vice-presi-dent, all other candidates retting in favo of the crough rider" who thus rides to

The platform is, us expected, a most thorough endorsement of the administra-tion and is the correct thing in allting to expected place, but it is noted for its disdons of many topics as much as for what It says upon others.

There is real disappedatment that Long was so summarily pushed one side by the party bosses, but probably meone can say that the sevelt was not the free choice i the delegates, for it was evident that the western men, particularly, were full of enthusiasm for him and for him only

The convention' was you by Hand Platt and Quay, but it is surmised that Hanna laid to bend to the will of the selection of his man for governor of Nev York. He has shelved Rossevelt ulcely and unless Mr. McKinley should die h office it is quite smilkely that Rossevel will ever be president. Four years on of the public eye in the quiet seclusion and dignity of the vice-presidency is no a good step to the presidency.

The squaw Man Wan Maerica as Indian Wanna For Her Land.

There is a social prodoca which has long been a source of apprehension to the Indians and which mong the other tribes as well as among the Cherakees has andombusily had much to do with the pressure upon the Indian States to declare a territorial form of gavernment. This is the Internurriage of white men into the Iribes for an other juripose than to share in the lands and funds of the nations. The lands of the Indians are rich not only for agricultural probabetion, but also in old and coal, and the greed of the white men for the enterprise of she Indiantial phoneer, if the milder epithet is preferred has found it impossible to abstain from exploiting such possibilities. As the land has been the property of the Indians and as the Indian has no power to transfer title the only alternative for the exploiters has been to marry into the tribes and nequire community property rights. Before the Irilial rolds were fur more estimate these marrings were fur more estimate in a soon rings were fur more common the day are now. The enrollment of the tribal members acrved to cleek the demand for Indian wives, and marriages of full blood aquaws to wide men are not of frequent occurrence now. The Ketownh society exerted its induces against these marriages and drove many bride hunters out of the territory. The Indians themselves realized that the white men who came to marry their wanten were not of a class to upilit the tribe.
